THE CITIZEN

C. REXFORD RAYMOND, Editor.

Entered at the Post-office at Berea, Ky., as second-class mail-matter.

Knowledge is power.

Where there's a will there's a way.

Love is the fulfilling of the Law. Jesus Christ.

It is no disgrace to be poor, but it is a disgrace to stay poor.

What To Talk About.

Talk happiness. The world is sad enough. Without your woes. No path is wholly rough. Look for the places that are smooth and clear, And speak of these to rest the weary ear. Of earth, so bent by one continuous strain Of human discontent, and grief, and pain.

Talk faith. The world is better off without Your spoken ignorance or morbid doubt. If you have faith in God, or man, or self, Say so. If not push back upon the shelf Of silence all your thoughts till faith shall come. No one will grieve because your lips are dumb.

Talk health. The dreary, never-changing tale Of mortal maladies is worn and stale. You cannot charm or interest or please, By harping on that minor chord, disease. Say you are well, and all is well with you, And God shall hear your words and make them true. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

C. REXFORD RAYMOND.

We take this opportunity when Raymond is away visiting friends in the mountains to publish his picture. He looks a bit older than this picture now—now that he is married!

There are hundreds of young people who are glad to see that friendly face.

The CITIZEN calls at many new homes this week. We hope you will all invite him to call again by sending in your subscription. It is only fifty cents a year, less than one cent a week. Your neighbors are taking the paper, and you cannot afford to be left behind.

Send half a dollar postal order directed to The CITIZEN, Berea, Ky.

Every new subscriber will receive a premium of a beautiful colored picture, or a book of Moody's sermons. These premiums will not last long. Send now.

The time to begin school is at the opening of the Fall Term of Berea College, Sept. 12.

Repeat the Goebel Election Law, and rebuke the men that made it.

FOREIGN.

American exhibitions received 1981 awards at the Paris exposition.

England is arranging to recall Lord Roberts from the Transvaal in October, announcing that the war is over.

Man arrested at Leipzig, August 17, for conspiracy to kill King Albert of Saxony, confessed that he was appointed by lot to do the deed, but his courage failed.

NATIONAL.

Severe drouth in Kansas destroys almost all of the corn crop.

Census shows the population of Greater New York to be over 2,000,000.

Fourteen immigrants detained in New York city under suspicion of being anarchists and in a conspiracy to kill President McKinley.

Roberts, of Utah, the Mormon or "Latter Day Saint," who was excluded from congress, is being prosecuted for following his false religion in having more than one wife.

KENTUCKY.

Natural gas found at Mt. Sterling.

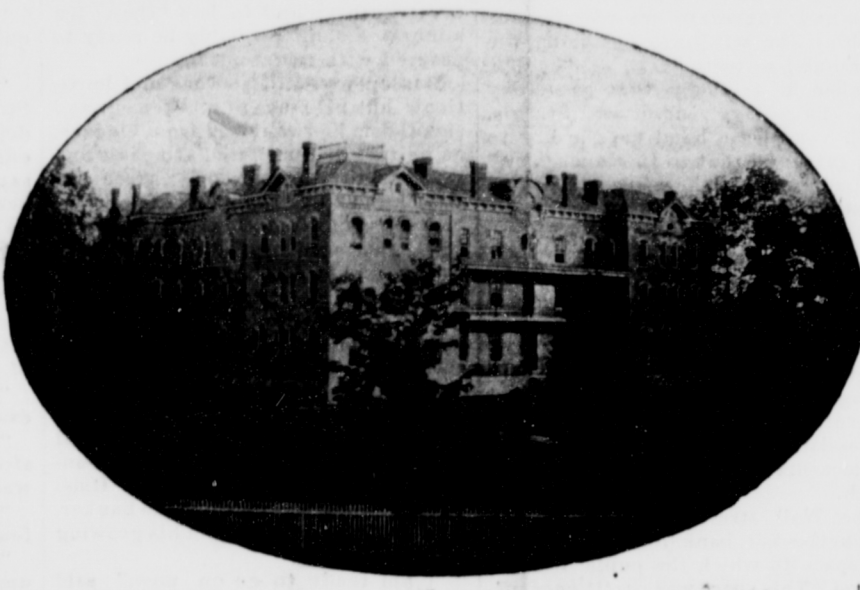

Brown democrats met in Louisville Friday and gave Yerkes their support for governor.

Hon. J. W. C. Beckham refuses to take part in joint debate with Mr. Yerkes, saying that the duties of his office forbid.

Caleb Powers, ex-secretary of State, of Kentucky, is found guilty of complicity in the murder of Goebel and sentenced to imprisonment for life. The conviction is regarded as a perversion of justice.

President Frost has made us understand the mountain people better. All he has said has made us think more of them. Berea College is helping our friends and fellow-countrymen in the mountain region in the most practical way, and I am glad to do my share to help it on.

The Republicans at Richmond Monday nominated Dr. John M. Williams, of Mt. Vernon, Ky., for congress.

The Madison county pension board has been reorganized with Dr. Phil Roberts, president, Dr. J. W. Harris, treas., and Dr. J. A. Gwynn, secretary.

Alliance, Neb., Aug. 19.—[Special to C.-J.]—B. C. Richardson was fatally wounded by a man named Cline this morning. Cline is a strolling musician and had been playing, in company with a woman, in Richardson's saloon.

There were only four applicants for teachers' certificates last Friday and Saturday as follows: Miss Stella Templeman, J. B. Million, Richmond; Miss Sallie Chrisman, Panola; Miss Oey B. Ellison, Mote.

Why You Should Attend Berea College This Fall.

The first reason is that you want to see a little of what is going on outside your own county. No doubt your county is a good one, and you have the right to love it. But God never put all the good things into one place.

At Berea, with its great library, its expensive scientific apparatus, and its thirty or more teachers from the best schools of the East and West, as well as its throngs of students from many different counties and different states—at Berea you will see and learn many of the best things gathered from the whole world.

The next reason is that every teacher at Berea will be your true friend.

They will treat you like a stranger. Look at the friendly faces that appear in this paper. Do you not want to have wise, kind friends like these?

The third reason is that you need more education in order to succeed

A GROUP OF MOUNTAIN GIRLS AT BEREA.

Rev. Wm. Ledwick has spent some time in profitable study at Chicago, and returned with his family last Wednesday.

Josiah Burdette and S. C. Lewis are in Cincinnati superintending work on the planing mill engine which is being repaired.

Pres. Frost will preach at Slate Lick next Sunday at 2:30, and at Disputanta the first Sunday in September at 3 p. m.

The stock exhibit at the Berea fair Friday and Saturday was very fine. We wish this fair could be made more orderly, and more profitable to the people. An agricultural address would be a good feature.

Bicknell & Early are adding a new addition to their store in which they will place brick and tiling. They have also secured all the available hay in the country and began baling yesterday.

Prof. S. C. Mason, who has been in Europe several months, observing the management of forests and farms, returned yesterday. Such an instructor will add to the wealth of all the land owners of this region.

A PROCLAMATION OF

ECONOMY for the Spring and Summer Season in Men's and Boys' Fine Stylish Made

CLOTHING!

We are prepared to cloth you with the Lowest-priced, rightly made, absolutely all-wool clothing in America. Rightly made, as it is of famous "Vitalis" Brand the only ready-to-wear clothing tailored on a strictly scientific basis in clean, well ventilated workrooms. Perfect fitting and wear-resisting, because the inside, the "Vitalis," the very life of the garment, is carefulness in making, represents the expenditure of time and thought, and is a decided contrast to the tailoring seen in ordinary ready-to-wear clothing. The fabrics that we show are the very newest designs that will be seen this season. Many confined exclusively to us, in the face of the above facts. The most extraordinary feature combining our great offer is, that we can and do sell our clothing at

LESS MONEY

Than elsewhere. How can we afford to sell such high-grade clothing for less money than elsewhere? Our answer is pure and simple. Ours is a modern store, constructed strictly on progressive plans, our clothing is sold on the smallest margin of profit, depending on a large volume of business. The more clothing we sell, the greater our purchasing power the lower our prices, that's the story in a nut-shell.

COVINGTON & MITCHELL

in life, and you can get it best and quickest at Berea. You ought to make a plan at once to make a true success of your life. It is very easy, as President Frost says, to aim at nothing and hit it! But you want to aim at something, and at something good and satisfying.

Do you want to be a teacher? It is more difficult every year to get a good school, but the Berea students in all the counties have the best certificates, and have the best schools. Take the Normal Course.

Do you want to be a Carpenter or a Printer? These trades are taught at Berea, and the boys who have had even a little training in the use of tools have all the work they want, while others are idle.

Are you a young lady who wishes to earn a little money? If you do not want to teach—and a teacher has work only part of the year—why not take the training in the Care of the Sick, in the Berea Hospital? A girl who has this training can be sure of earning several dollars a week the year around, and have the satisfaction of doing a great deal of good.

Another way for girls to earn money is by teaching music. A few terms at Berea, if you have a taste for music, will enable you to give lessons to the neighbor girls at home.

And everyone wishes to have the best kind of a home. The instruction at Berea in sewing, dress-making, cooking, gardening, care of stock, care of wood-land, and all such things will help you right along toward having a better home. You think you know enough about some of these things, but there is a great deal still to be learned. Is there any danger that you will know too much about these things?

And a little education opens the door for many higher pleasures which you can never have without the education. Do you not desire to know about the lives of great men, the history of our country, the discoveries of Science, and the meaning of the Sacred Scriptures? When one has studied these things with good teachers he has better things to think about all his life.

And the fall is the time to begin. Many young people have long ago learned all they can learn in the free school and are just wasting their time there. Others for various reasons are not attending the public school. And in any case one can progress much faster in Berea. Why should you let the fall pass without improvement? More and more young people are coming to Berea in the fall. Why should you not make the most of yourself? This fall term, if you come promptly and study faithfully, will change your whole life for the better.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.

BEREA, KENTUCKY

Brain workers, according to statistics which have been published recently, are long lived. Five hundred and thirty eminent men and women of the present century were taken, and their duration of life gives an average of about sixty-eight years and eight months.

A beggar's league in St. Petersburg mutilates children and cripples them to arouse sympathy from the benevolent when they are sent to beg in public places. The chief of this gang, who is a wealthy man and has posed as a philanthropist, receives 75 per cent. of the money begged by the unfortunate.

Each of the eighteen provinces of the Celestial Empire is ruled by a governor or governor general, who is responsible to the emperor for the entire administration, political, judicial, military and fiscal. Each province is subdivided into departments ruled by prefects, and each department into districts, each with a distinct ruler.

Gen. Collinson has calculated that on 50,000 tons of shipping, 30,000 men, 5,000 horses and 700 wagons can be transported, while Lord Wolsey reckons on 150,000 tons being necessary for the transport of 100,000 men. Admiral Morin, however, estimates that 40,000 tons of shipping will be needed for a division of 9,000 men, 800 horses and 150 wagons.

The pope does his private writing with a gold pen, but his pontifical signature is always given with a white-feathered quill, which is believed to come from the wing of a dove, although persons who have seen it say it must have come from a larger bird. The same quill has been in use more than 40 years. It only serves for important signatures and is kept in an ivory case.

Lightning on the Fourth of July destroyed a barn in Frederick Township, near Pottsville, Pa., that was built in 1740, and has been famous in local history since the Revolution. The farm on which it was then located was owned by Col. Frederick Antes, and Gen. Washington, with his bodyguard, had his headquarters there during the encampment at Pottsgrove.

Some curious facts concerning trees have been discovered. A single oak of good size is said to lift 123 tons of water during the months it is in leaf. This moisture is evaporated and rises to form rain clouds. From this estimate of the labor of a single oak we can gain some idea of the immense force which the forests exert in equalizing the evaporation and precipitation and preventing periods of inundation and drought.

According to the latest studies of Prof. De Sanctis, of Turin, children begin to dream before their fourth year, but are unable to recall dreams before the age of 5. This age, he concludes, is that at which a child first becomes instinctively conscious of self. Aged people dream less frequently and less vividly than the young. Women's dreams are more frequent, more vivid and better remembered than those of men.

Every horse in the English army is numbered and has a little history kept for it all to itself. The number is branded upon the animal's hind feet—the thousands on the near hind foot and the units, tens and hundreds on the off hind foot. Thus the horse whose number is, say, 8,354, will have an 8 on his left hind foot and 354 on the other one. On what is called a "Veterinary History Sheet" everything about the horse will from time to time be written.

A German scientist with all kinds of knobs on his head has discovered that yawning is a healthy pastime. It is wholesome, like oatmeal and brown bread. Yawning, it is said, stretches the muscles of the brain, sends the blood to the jaws and sharpens the appetite and intellect. It is a cheap remedy, accessible to young and old, rich and poor, and if it is as efficacious as our Teuton says, health is surely within the reach of everyone in this country.

The medical work of the missions has been a great and admitted boon to the Chinese, who have accepted it gratefully. In 1899 there were no fewer than 105 hospitals, largely staffed by medical women, and they attended in that year actually 348,439 Chinese patients, both giving medical treatment and performing the operations that restore ease to the tortured, give sight to the blind and open new life to the dying. So highly was this secular work appreciated that many wealthy Chinese had made large donations.

The most lonely highlands of our National territory are the sparsely wooded Sierras of Western New Mexico. The clank of the wood cutter's ax echoes through the steepest glens of the European Alps and Southern Alleghenies, but in the Sierra Mesilla, west of El Paso, there are valleys where the moan of the wind in the branches of the rock pines is the only sound heard for days together. A kind of marmot is the only inhabitant of these solitudes, and rarely leaves its burrows before noon. Birds are extremely rare.

WE TWO.

We two make home of any place we go;
We two find joy in any kind of weather;
Or if the earth is clothed in bloom or snow,
If summer days invite, or bleak winds blow,
What matters it, if we two are together?

We two, we two, we make our world, our weather.
We two make banquets of the plainest fare;
In every cup we find the thrill of pleasure;
We hide with wreaths the furrowed brow of care,
And win to smiles the set lips of despair.
For our life always moves with lilt and measure;

We two, we two, we make our joy, our pleasure.
We two find youth renewed with every dawn;
Each day holds something of an unknown glory;
We waste no thought on grief or pleasure gone;
Tricked out like hope, time leads us on and on,
And thrums upon his harp new song or story.

We two, we two, we find the paths of glory.
We two make Heaven here on this little earth;
We do not need to wait for realms eternal;
We know the use of tears, know sorrow's worth,
And pain for us is always love's rebirth.
Our paths lead closely by the paths supernatural;

We two, we two, we live in love eternal.

CHAPTER IX.

THE KNICKERBOCKER BANK.
Richard Dunlap was a man who had never missed a train nor been late in keeping an appointment. On the morning following Sprague's dinner party, he walked briskly down Broadway from City Hall. It was New Year's day; the great thoroughfare was deserted. As he turned into Wall street, the hands of the clock in Trinity steeple pointed to three minutes of nine. The financier pulled out his chronometer, found that the clock in the old belfry was right, and quickened his pace.

Wall street slumbered peacefully and silently, like a battlefield after the roar of the cannon has been hushed, after the victors and the vanquished have disappeared, leaving behind them only the ghosts of the slain. The deathlike stillness was oppressive.

At last, as Dunlap reached the Knickerbocker bank, the clock in the belfry struck the hour. The reporter was not there. The banker uttered an ejaculation of annoyance. He looked up and down the street. There was no one in sight. He resolved to give Sturgis five minutes' grace, and began to pace back and forth before the entrance to the bank. Then a thought struck him. There was another entrance on Exchange place—that generally used by the employees and officers. Perhaps the reporter was waiting there. Dunlap walked around to Exchange place and glanced up the street. He saw a man standing in the gutter and bending low over the curb. Dunlap advanced to obtain a front view of him and recognized Sturgis. The reporter had not noticed his approach; he held a magnifying glass in his hand and seemed deeply interested in a minute examination of the smooth-worn curb.

"Good morning, Mr. Sturgis," said the banker, "have you lost something?"

The reporter looked up quietly. "No, Mr. Dunlap; I have found something—something which may possibly prove to be a hyphen."

"A what?" asked the banker, perplexed.

"A hyphen connecting two parts of a very pretty puzzle."

Dunlap stared curiously at the curb. "I can see nothing there," said he.

Sturgis handed him the magnifying glass.

"Now look again."

He pointed out a particular portion of the curb. Dunlap looked in the direction indicated.

"I see what looks like dried mud, dust particles, and a little dark spot or stain."

"Yes," said Sturgis, "that dark spot is the hyphen. There were probably others like it on the sidewalk yesterday afternoon, but they have been obliterated by the pedestrians. Here, however, are some that have remained."

As he spoke, he led Dunlap to the Exchange place entrance of the bank, and pointed out a number of similar spots on the stone steps.

"Fortunately," he said, as if speaking to himself, "fortunately the detectives entered through the front door last night so that they did not interfere with this portion of the trail."

"But what are these spots?" asked the banker.

"They are blood-stains," replied the reporter. "I have every reason to believe them to be human blood. But that question I can settle positively as soon as we are in the bank, for I have brought a powerful microscope. Let us enter now, if you like; I have seen all there is to be seen outside. By the way, do you know this key?"

He held up a large steel key of complicated structure.

"Why," exclaimed Dunlap, surprised, "that looks like the key to the Exchange place door. Where did you find it?"

"In the gutter, near the sewer opening at the corner."

"But how did it get there?" asked Dunlap, anxiously.

"Perhaps I shall be able to answer that question presently," said Sturgis.

"Shall we go in now? No, not that way. Let us enter by the Wall street side, if you please."

A couple of minutes later the outer door of the Knickerbocker bank was unlocked.

"Excuse me if I pass in first," said Sturgis, entering. "I wish to see something here."

He bent low over the tiled entrance, with the magnifying glass in his hand. "It is too bad," he muttered to himself presently. "They have trodden all over the trail here. Ah! what is this?"

"What?" inquired Dunlap.

The reporter vouchsafed no reply to this question, but asked another.

"Is Thursday a general cleaning day at the bank?"

"Yes," answered the banker. "Every evening, after the closing hour, the floors are swept, of course, and the desks are dusted; but Mondays and Thursdays are reserved for washing the windows, scrubbing the floors, and so forth."

"Then it is lucky that yesterday was Thursday," observed Sturgis. "Will you please hand me the key to this gate, and that to the inner door?"

Upon entering the bank Sturgis requested his companion to seat himself on a particular chair, which he designated. He then began a critical examination of the premises. Inch by inch he scrutinized the walls, the floor, and even the ceiling; sometimes through the magnifying glass. He also constantly brought into play a tape measure; and several times he called upon Dunlap for assistance, when the distances to be measured were longer than his reach.

The Wall street entrance of the Knickerbocker bank led directly into the space to which the public was admitted. This space was partitioned off, as usual, from the bookkeepers' and cashier's departments. At the farther end a door led to a reception room communicating with the president's office. This office itself opened into the cashier's department on one side, and on the other into a small room occupied by the president's secretary and typewriter, and into the vestibule of the Exchange place entrance to the bank. On the right of the vestibule was a large room in which the bank employees kept their street clothing, and to which they could retire when they were off duty. A door from the clerks' room led into the cashier's department, while another one opened into the private secretary's room.

After he had finished his inspection of the space open to the public, Sturgis, followed by Dunlap, passed into the president's reception room, and thence in turn into the other rooms, and finally into the cashier's and bookkeepers' departments.

Several times he stopped, retraced his footsteps to some particular point and then began his search anew. At times he crawled about on his hands and knees; at others he climbed upon the furniture, the better to examine some spot upon the wall. In the president's office he stopped to pick up a great number of tiny scraps of paper which lay in and around the waste basket. These he carefully placed in an envelope, which he laid upon the president's table.

On one side of the room there stood a magnificent old-fashioned carved mantelpiece. The artistic beauty of the structure did not seem to strike Sturgis, but he appeared to derive a great deal of satisfaction from an inspection of the large tiled hearth. Presently, removing his coat and his cuffs, he plunged his hand into the grimy chimney and removed a handful of soot, which he examined carefully and then threw away. He repeated the operation again and again, until at last, with evident satisfaction, he picked out a small object, which he deposited in an envelope. Then, after washing his hands in the clerks' room, he passed into the cashier's department. In a corner stood the telephone closet, the door of which was open. The receiver of the instrument was down. The reporter took it up and gazed at it long and earnestly.

Sturgis' examination of the bank must have lasted over two hours. At first Richard Dunlap looked on with a mild curiosity, in which amusement struggled with good-natured skepticism. But as time wore on the banker began to show signs of impatience, and when at last Sturgis returned to the private office and carefully deposited upon a sheet of white paper a miscellaneous assortment of tiny scraps and shreds, the banker could scarcely conceal his dissatisfaction.

"Well, Mr. Sturgis," he said, "I hope you have nearly completed your investigation; for my leisure is not so abundant that I can afford to waste it like this."

"I need one more witness at least," replied the reporter, "and I am afraid I shall have to ask you to help me obtain it."

"But," he quickly added, as he noted Dunlap's impatient gesture, "I think I can promise you that the time you are regretting has not been wasted."

The financier did not seem convinced by this assertion; but he nevertheless consented with an unwilling grace to assist the reporter to the best of his ability.

"Well, then," said Sturgis, "tell me, first of all, whether you keep firearms in the bank?"

"Yes," replied Dunlap; "the cashier has a small revolver which he keeps in his desk as a means of defense in case of a sudden attack by a bank thief."

"Have you the key to the desk?"

"Yes," replied the banker.

"Will you kindly see if the revolver you mention is in its place?"

"It ought to be," said Dunlap, picking out the key on a bunch which he took from his pocket, and walking towards the cashier's department with Sturgis at his heels.

"Yes, here it is in its accustomed place."

He handed it to the reporter, who examined it attentively.

"Exactly," said Sturgis, with satisfaction; "this is what I was looking for."

"What do you mean?" asked Dunlap. "I mean that this is the revolver which was fired twice last night in the Knickerbocker bank. See for yourself; two of the cartridges are empty, and the weapon has not been cleaned since these shots were fired."

"But who can have fired the pistol, and at whom was it fired, and why?"

"Hold on! hold on!" exclaimed Sturgis, smiling; "one thing at a time. We shall perhaps come to that soon. For the present, if you will come back to your private office, I shall endeavor to piece together the scraps of evidence which I have been able to collect. There, sit down in your own armchair, if you will, while I fit these bits of paper together; and in less than ten minutes I shall probably be ready to proceed with my story."

Dunlap was still nervous and impatient; but all trace of amusement and skepticism had vanished from his face, as he took the proffered armchair and watched Sturgis patiently piece together the tiny fragments of paper he had so carefully gathered. When this work was accomplished, the reporter went to the typewriter and wrote a few lines on a sheet of paper. He next proceeded to examine under the microscope the minute fragments and particles which he had collected in his search.

When he had finished this operation, he leaned back in his chair and looked up into space for what seemed to Dunlap an interminable length of time. Then at last he glanced at the banker, who could hardly contain his growing impatience.

"I am ready to go on now," said Sturgis, reaching for a sheet of paper, upon which he began to draw with ruler and pencil.

"At last!" sighed the banker.

"Yes; but my first, as the charades say, is a question."

"Another?" gasped Dunlap; "when is my turn to come?"

"Just a few more," replied Sturgis; "and then your turn will come for good."

"Well, out with your questions then, if you must," said Dunlap, seating himself resignedly in his chair.

CHAPTER X.

PIECING THE EVIDENCE.

Sturgis was still busy with his diagram. He spoke without looking up from his work.

"Who besides yourself has a key to the drawer in which this revolver is kept?"

"The cashier has one and the head bookkeeper has another."

"You mean the bookkeeper who sits at the desk at the extreme right in the bookkeepers' department?"

"Yes," replied Dunlap, "that is Mr. Arbogast's desk. Do you know him?"

"No. What did you say the gentleman's name is?" The reporter looked up and prepared to make a note of it.

"John W. Arbogast."

"A man something over 50 years of age, quite bald, with a fringe of gray hair; wears a heavy mustache and side whiskers; and had on yesterday afternoon, when you last saw him, a pepper-and-salt business suit," said Sturgis, writing down the name in his notebook.

Dunlap stared at the reporter in amazement. Sturgis smiled slightly.

"I met the gentleman yesterday afternoon," he explained.

"Oh, that accounts for it!" exclaimed the banker. "I see—but but, then, how comes it that you did not know his name?"

"He did not tell me his name," said Sturgis, gravely, "and I did not know until just now that he was employed in the Knickerbocker bank. How long has he been with you?"

"Nearly 20 years; but only for the last five years as head bookkeeper."

"I suppose you have every confidence in his honesty?" asked the reporter, looking critically at the diagram he was forming.

"Of course. Such a position is not given to a man unless his record is excellent."

"And yet," observed the reporter, reflectively, "opportunity sometimes makes the thief."

"True; but the duty of a bank president is to reduce such opportunities to a minimum," said Dunlap, somewhat pompously.

"Quite so," assented Sturgis, "and this you accomplish by—"

"By having the books examined periodically," answered the banker, rubbing his hands together with calm satisfaction.

"I see," said the reporter, who had now finished his sketch. "Do the employees of the bank know when an examination of this kind is to be made?"

"They do not even know that such examinations are made. No one but the accountant and myself are in the secret; for the overhauling of the books is done entirely at night, after the bank is closed."

"Have the books been recently examined?" asked Sturgis, carelessly.

"Yes; only last week."

"Well?"

"They were found to be all right, as usual."

"May I ask by whom?"

"By Murray & Scott, the expert accountants."

"Was the examination conducted by Mr. Murray or by Mr. Scott?"

"By neither. For many years the work was done by one or the other of the members of the firm; but since their business has grown to its present proportions Messrs. Murray and Scott are no longer able to give personal attention to their customers. For the last two years they have sent us a trusted employee, Mr. Chatham—Thomas Chatham."

"Yes," said Sturgis, who was apparently wool-gathering.

A silence of several minutes followed during which the reporter thoughtfully inspected his collection of microscopic odds and ends, while Dunlap beat the devil's tattoo upon the desk.

Presently the reporter spoke again: "Do you know a young man, about five feet eight inches tall, with fiery red hair, who affects somewhat loud clothes?"

"Why, that is Thomas Chatham. You know him, then?"

"No; I never heard of him before."

"Then, how on earth do you know—?"

"He has been here recently."

"Yes; I told you he had been here last week; but—"

"No; I mean he was here yesterday afternoon," interrupted the reporter.

"Not to my knowledge," said Dunlap, incredulously.

"I thought as much," Sturgis replied, quietly; "but he was here, for all that."

The banker looked perplexed.

"Now, another thing," continued Sturgis. "I notice in the bookkeepers' department an announcement to the effect that on January 2—that is to say, to-morrow—a new system of bookkeeping will be adopted. Would this be such as to bring to light any irregularities that might exist in the books?"

"Yes; it involves the transfer of each bookkeeper every month to a different set of books. But I fail to see the drift of your questions."

"You will see it presently. Have you examined the safes this morning?"

"Yes; one of the first things I did, after you allowed me to move at all, was to examine the cash safe."

"Ah, yes; the cash safe. And you found its contents intact?"

"Perfectly," said the banker, triumphantly.

"But there is also a safe in the bookkeepers' department."

"It contains nothing but the books, which of course would have no value to anyone but ourselves."

"You have not examined this safe?"

"Why, no; I—"

"If you have no objection, I should like to see the interior of that safe. I suppose, of course, you know the combination of that as well as that of the cash safe?"

"Oh, yes; the combinations are changed every Saturday, and of course I am always informed of the new combination."

"Then may I examine the bookkeepers' safe?"

"I see no objection to your doing so, if you like."

Dunlap seemed surprised at the reporter's request; but he rose and proceeded to the bookkeepers' department. Sturgis followed an instant later.

[To Be Continued.]

A DANGEROUS MOMENT.

The Nerve-Shaking Ordeal Which Once Confronted a Noted Bishop.

One need not be a soldier to stand in need of courage. A clergyman may find himself confronted with as nerve-shaking an ordeal as those more generally expected by the man of war. In his retrospect of "The Lights and Shadows of a Long Episcopate," Bishop Whipple tells of a moment when he found it extremely necessary that his courage should not fail him.

The bishop was about to preach in one of the cathedrals, when there entered a divinity student whose brain had become deranged by overmuch study. He went forward, as if to sit with the others.

"On reaching the chancel, however," says the bishop, "he stopped, and, taking a revolver from his pocket, pointed it at me. I felt what was coming before the revolver appeared, and knowing that the young man was short-sighted, and that he would probably wait until sure of his aim, I walked with quick, long strides through the chancel, which is very deep, grateful that I had been an athlete in younger days."

"At the chancel steps I made a leap, seized the young man by the collar, and turned him sharply round with my knee at his back, while I said to the congregation: 'Will some one take charge of this man? He is insane.'"

"It all happened so quickly that no one moved till then. The poor fellow was led out and the service went on. It was found that the pistol had a hair trigger, and that all the chambers were loaded, making it a marvel that no tragedy had occurred."

Unrewarded Obedience.

"Why were you discharged from your last position?"

"It was this way. The governor said it was time to take stock, and I took all I could. Then we went back on me and threatened to have me locked up for stealing; so I left."—Tit-Bits.

NEBRASKA THE LAND OF PLENTY

I wonder why it is that so many men spend their days working hard on rented farms, barely making enough to get along, with no great prospect ahead of owning their own homes, when within a few hours' journey is a land of plenty—Nebraska—where all kinds of grain and fruit can be raised with the least amount of labor; where cattle and hogs fed on corn bring a handsome profit; where the climate is healthful and churches and schools abound; where land is cheap and can be bought on very easy terms.

Think of this, and if you want information about the country send to me for "The Corn Belt," a beautifully illustrated monthly paper that tells all about Nebraska, and also for "The West Nebraska Grazing Country," an interesting illustrated booklet containing a large sectional map of Nebraska. On the first and third Tuesdays of each month during the balance of this year cheap excursion tickets will be sold over our road to Nebraska, so that people may go and see for themselves. ALLIES IN PEKING

News of the Capture of the Chinese Capital Proves to Be True.

METHOD OF ENTRY NOT DETAILED

Some Reports Say That There Was Severe Fighting While Others Say There Was None.

Adm. Remey Confirms the Report and Says That All the Foreign Legations in Peking Are Safe—Latest Chinese Advice.

London, Aug. 18.—The second edition of the Daily Telegraph publishes a special dispatch from Shanghai, which says: "The allies entered Peking unopposed and met with a friendly reception from Prince Ching. All the hostile elements have already escaped from the city. The imperial court left for Shen-Si on August 11, with the Manchus. The Kausu troops have gone southwest with the object of drawing off the allies and preventing them from following up the court."

London, Aug. 18.—The hearsay accounts of the method of entry into Peking are contradictory, some maintaining that there was severe fighting and others that the entrance was not opposed. New Chang was again attacked on August 13, but the Russians repulsed 2,000 Chinese, inflicting heavy loss, although they also suffered severely.

According to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Che-Foo, the dispatch from Mr. Conger, which was received by United States Consul Fowler Wednesday, after saying that all the Americans were alive except the English baby and seven marines, admitted that there was some sickness but said that he expected food would last until relief came.

GEN. SIR ALFRED GASELEE
(Commander of the British Forces on the Way to Peking)

Shanghai dispatches say that Emperor Kwang Su accompanied the empress dowager to Hsian Fu, much against his will. Prince Tuan commanded the rear guard of the imperial escort, of which the Boxers formed 65 per cent. It was expected that Gen. Feng Fu Shiang would follow after the arrival of the allies. All the place treasures were sent to Hsian Fu.

"Peking was relieved on the night of the 15th." This message was received at the imperial customs office in London from the commissioner of customs in Che-Foo. It is the only official message that has reached England in confirmation of the earlier reports.

Proceeding to discuss the probabilities of a cessation of hostilities, the Morning Post assumes that the United States are willing to abandon any idea of further aggressive action, but it questions the disposition of Germany and the other powers to agree to such a course.

Telegram From Fowler.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The acting secretary of state makes public the following plain telegram received Friday evening from the United States consul at Che-Foo:

"Che-Foo, Aug. 17, 1900 (Received August 17th, 7:55 p. m.)

Secretary of State, Washington. Seventeenth day—Japanese Admiral reports allies attacked Peking. Obsolete resistance. Evening Japanese entered capital with other forces. Immediately surrounded legations. Inmates safe. Japanese loss over 100. Chinese 300.

Remey Confirms the News.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The navy department received the following cablegram from Adm. Remey:

"Fuku, Aug. 17, 1 a. m.—Bureau of Navigation, Washington: Just received telegram from Tien-Tsin dated 16th, 9 p. m.: 'Peking was captured on August 15. Foreign legations are safe. Details follow shortly.' (Signed) 'REMEY'."

Order of the Relief Column.

Tokio, Aug. 18.—Extracts from a long dispatch describing the advance of the allied forces from Tien-Tsin say Gen. Ma disappeared during the fighting at Yang-Tsun; that the immediate advance on Peking was decided upon at a council of war in which 285 officers took part, held at Yang-Tsun, August 1, and that the advance columns were drawn up in the following order: Japanese, Russian, British and American.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson in the International Series for August 26, 1900—Jesus the Good Shepherd.

[Prepared by H. C. Lexington.]
THE LESSON TEXT.
(John 10:1-16)

1. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheep-fold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.
2. But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.
3. To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice; and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.
4. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him; for they know his voice.
5. And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.
6. This parable spake Jesus unto them; but they understood not what things which he spake unto them.
7. Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.
8. All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers; but the sheep do not hear them.
9. I am the door; by Me if any man enter in, He shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.
10. The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come, that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.
11. I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.
12. But he that is a hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.
13. The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.
14. I am the good shepherd, and know My sheep, and am known of mine.
15. As the Father knoweth Me, even so knoweth I the Father, and I lay down My life for the sheep.
16. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear My voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.—John 10:11.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Shepherd of the Sheep (Verses 1-5).—The connection of this lesson with the last is marked. Not only does it belong to the same series of discourses, but its application hinges upon the events connected with the story of the blind man. The Pharisees were anxious to divert the credit for the restoring of this man's sight from Jesus. They said to him: "Give God the glory; we know that this man (Jesus) is a sinner." The reply of the man was eminently sensible. Theorizing was not in his line, but he had one hard, solid, substantial fact upon which to stand. "Whether he be a sinner," he said, "I know not; one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see." This could not be disputed; it was evident to all. It was no theory, but a fact. So they made him repeat his story, and having determined to put anyone out of the synagogue who acknowledged Jesus to be the Christ, the Pharisees followed him hard with questions until he boldly declared: "If this man were not from God, he could do nothing."

Jesus heard that they had cast him out of the synagogue, and finding him, declared Himself to be the Son of God. Then turning to the Pharisees spoke this parable of the good shepherd, drawing the distinction between the true and false leaders. The priests and Pharisees stood in the place of shepherds to the children of Israel, their religious guides and instructors. They had misused their positions, substituted false doctrines, and led the sheep astray. They strove for personal advantage, for position and honor, and not for the good of those in their charge. The parable is really an arraignment of these false teachers.

Jesus the Door (Verses 6-7).—In contradistinction to this worldly, self-seeking attitude, Jesus declares Himself to be the door of the sheep. The Pharisees had not understood the parable. Jesus points out the application: "The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy." They had been thieves in the fold of the Master. Jesus instead of seeking personal advantage declares He has come "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

Jesus the Shepherd (Verses 11-16).—Not only is Jesus the door, the way to life, but He is the Shepherd. The sheep belong to Him. The men who care for the sheep for Him feel little interest in the welfare of the sheep. They fly for their own safety at the cry of "wolf." Jesus, the true Shepherd, will lay His very life down for the sheep. The Pharisees have claimed to be the ambassadors of God, but they know not God's son. Jesus knows the Father, and His Father's interests are His interests; therefore the sheep, all true believers in God and Jesus Christ, shall know His voice. By and by all such believers shall be gathered together in one fold under one shepherd.

One of the main lessons to be found in all this story outside of its plainly evangelistic teaching is that we may know the true teacher, the one who can be trusted, by the fact that he seeks not his own interests, but the interests of others. The unselfish life is the life of power and influence among men.

Note in the lesson the many objects present and draw from them their lessons. The door, the sheep, the hireling and wolf all have a distinct teaching.

Duty of To-Day.

"To-day" also imposes a duty. "Exhort one another daily, while it is called to-day, lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin." Follow to use the present day earnestly with it the possibility that we or others may be hardened in sin.—United Presbyterian.

The Great Thing.

It ought not to seem new to me to serve Thee, but rather this doth appear much to me, and wonderful, that thou vouchsafest to receive into thy service one so poor and unworthy.

Passing of the Horse.

So soon as nature sees an improvement there is a change. The candle gave way to electricity. The spinning wheel to machinery. The horse to the automobile. The fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been sold for over half a century, proves its value. There is nothing to equal it for stomach or liver trouble. It is Nature's own remedy, and the only one to cure dyspepsia or weak stomach.

$500,000 a Very Low Estimate.

This is the opinion expressed by Charles B. Goldthwaite, of Troy, Ala., who wrote, as follows: "I would not take $500 for the good Palmer's Lotion has done my son. The physician who had treated him for fifteen months pronounced it the worst case of Granulated Eyelids he ever saw." No house- hold should be without Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap. If your druggist does not keep them, send his name to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, and receive free pamphlet of testimonials and sample of Lotion or Soap.

When a preparation has an advertised reputation that is world-wide, it means that preparation is meritorious. If you go into a store to buy an article that has achieved universal popularity like Castoria's Candy Cathartic for example, you feel it has the endorsement of the world. The judgment of the people is infallible because it is impersonal. The retailer who wants to sell you "something else" in place of the article you ask for, has an ax to grind. Don't it stand to reason? He's trying to sell something that is not what he represents it to be. Why? Because he expects to derive an extra profit out of your credulity. Don't you see through his little game? The man who will try to sell you a substitute for Castoria's is a fraud. Beware of him! He is trying to steal the honestly earned benefits of a reputation which another business man has paid for, and if his conscience will allow him to go so far, he will go farther. If he cheats his customer in one way, he will in another and it is not safe to do business with him. Beware of the "Castoria" substitute! Remember Castoria's are never sold in bulk but in metal boxes with the long tailed "C" on every box and each tablet stamped C. C. C.

30 FEET OF BOWELS

are packed away in your insides and must be kept clean, in order and doing business.

It's a long way, with many turns and pitfalls to catch the refuse and clog the channel if not most carefully cleaned out every day.

When this long canal is blockaded, look out for trouble—furred tongue, bad breath, belching of gases, yellow spots, pimples and boils, headaches, spitting up of food after eating—an all-around disgusting nuisance.

Violent pill poisons or gripping salts are dangerous to use for cleaning out the bowels. They force out the obstruction by causing violent spasms of the bowels, but they leave the intestines weak and even less able to keep up regular movements than before, and make a larger dose necessary next time.

Then you have the pill habit, which kills more people than the morphine and whiskey habits combined.

The only safe, gentle but certain bowel cleansers are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, because they don't force out the faecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action. Buy and try them! (Look out for imitations and substitutes or you can't get results. Cascarets are never sold in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the long-tailed "C" on the box.) You will find that in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently

ALLIES IN PEKING

News of the Capture of the Chinese Capital Proves to Be True.

METHOD OF ENTRY NOT DETAILED

Some Reports Say That There Was Severe Fighting While Others Say There Was None.

Adm. Remey Confirms the Report and Says That All the Foreign Legations in Peking Are Safe—Latest Chinese Advice.

London, Aug. 18.—The second edition of the Daily Telegraph publishes a special dispatch from Shanghai, which says: "The allies entered Peking unopposed and met with a friendly reception from Prince Ching. All the hostile elements have already escaped from the city. The imperial court left for Shen-Si on August 11, with the Manchus. The Kausu troops have gone southwest with the object of drawing off the allies and preventing them from following up the court."

London, Aug. 18.—The hearsay accounts of the method of entry into Peking are contradictory, some maintaining that there was severe fighting and others that the entrance was not opposed. New Chwang was again attacked on August 13, but the Russians repulsed 2,000 Chinese, inflicting heavy loss, although they also suffered severely.

According to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Che-Foo, the dispatch from Mr. Conger, which was received by United States Consul Fowler Wednesday, after saying that all

GEN. SIR ALFRED GASELEE.
(Commander of the British Forces on the Way to Peking.)

The Americans were alive except the English baby and seven marines, admitted that there was some sickness but said that he expected food would last until relief came.

Shanghai dispatches say that Emperor Kwang Su accompanied the empress dowager to Hsian Fu, much against his will. Prince Tuan commanded the rear guard of the imperial escort, of which the Boxers formed 65 per cent. It was expected that Gen. Teng Fuh Siang would follow after the arrival of the allies. All the place treasures were sent to Hsian Fu.

"Peking was relieved on the night of the 15th." This message was received at the imperial customs office in London from the commissioner of customs in Che-Foo. It is the only official message that has reached England in confirmation of the earlier reports.

Proceeding to discuss the probabilities of a cessation of hostilities, the Morning Post assumes that the United States are willing to abandon any idea of further aggressive action, but it questions the disposition of Germany and the other powers to agree to such a course.

Telegram From Fowler.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The acting secretary of state makes public the following plain telegram received Friday evening from the United States consul at Che-Foo:

"Che-Foo, Aug. 17, 1900 (Received August 17th, 7:55 p. m.)

Secretary of State, Washington.
Seventeenth day—Japanese Admiral reports allies attacked Peking, obstinate resistance. Evening Japanese entered capital with other forces. Immediately surrounded legations. Inmates safe. Japanese loss over 100, Chinese 300.

Remey Confirms the News.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The navy department received the following cablegram from Adm. Remey:

"Taken, Aug. 17, 1 a. m.—Bureau of Navigation, Washington: Just received telegram from Tien-Tsin dated 10th, 9 p. m.: 'Peking was captured on August 15. Foreign legations are safe. Details follow shortly.' (Signed) 'REMEY.'"

Order of the Relief Column.

Tokio, Aug. 18.—Extracts from a long dispatch describing the advance of the allied forces from Tien-Tsin say Gen. Ma disappeared during the fighting at Yang-Tsun; that the immediate advance on Peking was decided upon at a council of war in which 385 officers took part, held at Yang-Tsun, August 7, and that the advance columns were drawn up in the following order: Japanese, Russian, British and American.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson in the International Series for August 26, 1900.—Jesus and the Good Shepherd.

(Prepared by H. C. Lennington.)
THE LESSON TEXT.
(John 10:1-15.)

1. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheep-fold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.
2. But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.
3. To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice; and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.
4. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him; for they know his voice.
5. And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him; for they know not the voice of strangers.
6. This parable spake Jesus unto them; but they understood not what things they were which He spake unto them.
7. Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.
8. All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers; but the sheep did not hear them.
9. I am the door; by Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.
10. The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy; I am come, that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.
11. I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.
12. But He that is a hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth; and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.
13. The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.
14. I am the good shepherd, and know My sheep, and am known of mine.
15. As the Father knoweth Me, even so knoweth I the Father, and I lay down My life for the sheep.
16. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear My voice, and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.—John 10:11.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Shepherd of the Sheep (Verses 1-5).—The connection of this lesson with the last is marked. Not only does it belong to the same series of discourses, but its application hinges upon the events connected with the story of the blind man. The Pharisees were anxious to divert the credit for the restoring of this man's sight from Jesus. They said to Him: "Give God the glory; we know that this man (Jesus) is a sinner." The reply of the man was eminently sensible. Theorizing was not in his line, but he had one hard, solid, substantial fact upon which to stand. "Whether he be a sinner," he said, "I know not; one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see." This could not be disputed, it was evident to all. It was no theory, but a fact. So they made him repeat his story, and having determined to put anyone out of the synagogue who acknowledged Jesus to be the Christ, the Pharisees followed him hard with questions until he boldly declared: "If this man were not from God, he could do nothing."

Jesus heard that they had cast him out of the synagogue, and finding him, declared Himself to be the Son of God. Then turning to the Pharisees spoke this parable of the good shepherd, drawing the distinction between the true and false leaders. The priests and Pharisees stood in the place of shepherds to the children of Israel, their religious guides and instructors. They had misused their positions, substituted false doctrines, and led the sheep astray. They strove for personal advantage, for position and honor, and not for the good of those in their charge. The parable is really an arraignment of these false teachers.

Jesus the Door (Verses 6-7).—In contradistinction to this worldly, self-seeking attitude, Jesus declares Himself to be the door of the sheep. The Pharisees had not understood the parable. Jesus points out the application: "The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy." They had been thieves in the fold of the Master. Jesus instead of seeking personal advantage declares He has come "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

Jesus the Shepherd (Verses 11-15).—Not only is Jesus the door, the way to life, but He is the Shepherd. The sheep belong to Him. The men who care for the sheep for Him feel little interest in the welfare of the sheep. They fly for their own safety at the cry of "wolf." Jesus, the true Shepherd, will lay His very life down for the sheep. The Pharisees have claimed to be the ambassadors of God, but they know not God's son. Jesus knows the Father, and His Father's interests are His interests, therefore the sheep, all true believers in God and Jesus Christ, shall know His voice. By and by all such believers shall be gathered together in one fold under one shepherd.

One of the main lessons to be found in all this story outside of its plainly evangelistic teaching is that we may know the true teacher, the one who can be trusted, by the fact that he seeks not his own interests, but the interests of others. The unselfish life is the life of power and influence among men.

Note in the lesson the many objects present and draw from them their lessons. The door, the sheep, the hireling and wolf all have a distinct teaching.

Duty of To-Day.

"To-day" also imposes a duty. "Exhort one another daily, while it is called to-day, lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin." Failure to use the present any earnestly with it the possibility that we or others may be hardened in sin.—United Presbyterian.

The Great Thing.

It ought not to seem much to me to serve Thee, but rather in this do appear much to me, and wonderful, that thou vouchsafest to receive into thy service one so poor and unworthy.

Passing of the Horse.

So soon as nature sees an improvement there is a change. The candle gave way to electricity. The spinning wheel to machinery, the horse to the automobile. The fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been sold for over half a century, shows its value. There is nothing to equal it for stomach or liver trouble. It is Nature's own remedy, and the only one to cure dyspepsia or weak stomach.

O--I--C

When a preparation has an advertised reputation that is world-wide, it means that preparation is meritorious. If you go into a store to buy an article that has achieved universal popularity like Cascarets Candy Cathartic for example, you feel it has the endorsement of the world. The judgment of the people is infallible because it is impersonal. The retailer who wants to sell you "something else" in place of the article you ask for, has an axe to grind. Don't it stand to reason? He's trying to sell something that is not what he represents it to be. Why? Because he expects to derive an extra profit out of your credulity. Don't you see through his little game? The man who will try to sell you a substitute for Cascarets is a fraud. Beware of him! He is trying to steal the honestly earned benefits of a reputation which another business man has paid for, and if his conscience will allow him to go so far, he will go farther. If he cheats his customer in one way, he will in another and it is not safe to do business with him. Beware of the Cascaret substitute! Remember Cascarets are never sold in bulk but in metal boxes with the long tailed "C" on every box and each tablet stamped C. C. C.

PRESIDENT FROST.

In Dr. Win. Goodell Frost the mountaineers of the Appalachian Belt of the South have found an educational leader who has a truly marvelous fitness for his work. He has a great enthusiasm for the people of the Southern mountains, and he knows how to inspire and help them.—Review of Reviews for March, 1900.

For the Mountain People.

The mountains of the South cover part of nine states. The mountain people of Kentucky are, as a rule, in advance of those of most of the other states. For example in the Kentucky mountains we find fine stone chimneys which witness to the enterprise, skill, and industry of the people, while in the Carolina mountains we find more stick chimneys. Berea has done more than all other schools to befriend the mountain people, and adapt its work to their needs. President Frost has made friends for them everywhere by telling of their noble qualities, and their services to the nation in the civil war. Prof. Mason has just returned from a journey to the old world where he went on purpose to find out how to help the mountain people manage their farms and forests better. When more of our Kentucky young people graduate from the Normal Department they will be sent to teach in other states as well as in their own. Berea sends out its proclamation to all the young men and young ladies of the mountains and tells them to take courage. We can show you the way of progress. We can introduce you to good friends. Helen Gould, the first lady in America, came all the way from her home in New York city to see Berea College, and to show her interest in the young people Berea is educating.

Berea and its students will make the mountain region one of the very best parts of our whole country.

A Problem in Arithmetic.

Cost of a term of School at Berea.

Berea is not a money-making institution. It gives the services of all its teachers. It charges only an incidental fee to help pay for sweeping and warming the school rooms, etc.

The Hospital fee insures care in any sickness, so that you are safer in Berea than at home!

And then you must live at Berea (you have to eat even if you stay at home!). You may board yourself under proper regulations, board in approved families in Berea, or board at cost in College buildings. The items are given below, and should be studied carefully. Notice especially:

1. Room, fuel, incidental fee, and one month's board must be paid in advance.
2. Fuel will be 50 cents more in the winter, 50 cents less in the spring.
3. Students below Grammar schools pay only $3.50 for incidental fee.
4. Students in A Grammar and below have free textbooks.
5. Students bring their own bedding and towels.
6. If you get any work to do for the College you are paid at the end of each month in credits on school expenses.
7. They can't lend you money, but the Treasurer and every teacher will be your friend.

To pay the first day:
School (Incidental Fee, etc.)	$ 4.50	$1.50
Ex-Boarding Fee	25	25
Books, etc., about	2.00	2.00
Key Deposit	1.00	1.00
Room (stove, table, etc.)	2.00	2.00
Fuel and oil	2.00	3.00
Text of Laundry	50	50
First Month's Board	5.00	5.00
Living Expenses	17.25	18.75
To pay during the term:
Laundry	1.50	1.50
Beginning 3d Mo. Board	5.00	5.00
Beginning 3d Mo. Board	5.00	5.00
Key Deposit returned	1.00	1.00
Total Expense, 12 Weeks	27.75	27.75

For those below A Grammar deduct the $2 for books and $1 from incidental fee, making the total only $24.75. When four girls room together each saves $1 on room, and $2 or more on fuel, making the total only $21.75. The price of a big calf, a little tan bark, or a few home-spun bed covers, will give a term of school which will change one's whole life for the better!

The mountains sent 200,000 men into the Union Army. They held Kentucky in the Union, and made West Virginia secede from secession. And they are going to help the nation in the future.

FARM FOREMAN AND SURVEYOR

THE HOME.

Starting a New Home.

People have instruction and advice about all other subjects, but generally, or at least too often, scorn council and even neglect to use their own best judgment, in this greatest venture of life—starting a home.

We will not speak now about the matter of choosing a life companion, but take that for granted. Here is an honest, temperate, industrious, true-hearted man who has exchanged hearts with a healthy, sensible, capable girl. We shall all be glad to attend their wedding!

Now what is necessary for the new home in which these two are to live in happiness, and receive their friends, and into which their children will be born? We do not think of luxuries, but the simple comforts, which, thank God, any enterprising couple in this country may have. What do you furnish for the home, John?

"Well sir, I furnish a new log-house with a stone chimney, and a piece of land, and I built the house myself. There is a cool spring house near, and a smoke house, and a stable. I have a horse that can plow out my corn, and carry double when meeting time comes. I have an ax, and a mattock, and a plow, and other tools. And I have fifty dollars laid up to use if I should be sick, or when more is added to it, to buy more land with."

"What books and brains do you furnish, John?"

"Not so much as I would like, but enough so that I can help my children to get more. I have been to the free school so that I can write a letter, and keep an account book. And I had two terms at Berea, and have learned how to use a dictionary, and how to use tools a bit. I know enough so that I don't think I know everything, and enough so that I can learn more. For books I have some school books that are like old friends, my Bible, a farmer's manual, three or four story books, and the Royal Path of Life. Mary has some others, and we are going to take the Citizen and the Union Gospel News, so I allow we'll go forward and not back wards in the way of education."

"Well done, John, you are ready for a home, and deserve a good one. Next week we will inquire what Mary is furnishing for the new establishment."

Friendly Faces.

Two students passed each other in the Ladies' Hall one evening last fall, and the one who had been in Berea several years noticed that the other girl was wiping a tear out of her eye.

"I know what it is, dear," she said. "You are home-sick. I used to be, too. But now I just feel that Berea is a second and a bigger home."

We wish that we could show you in this one paper all the faces of your Berea friends, but we cannot. We will however, give you just two or three.

MRS. HILL.

CLASS IN FARMING.

THE SCHOOL.

A New Educator For This Region.

It has not yet become generally known that Berea College has secured a new man of highest reputation, training, and experience, to take charge of the Normal Department, Supt. J. W. Dinsmore, of Beatrice, Nebraska.

Mrs. Eliza H. Vocum, who has been at the head of this department, and who is known and loved and admired by so wide a circle, has long felt that she could do more good in the classroom, and she is transferred to other work as Professor of German, and assistant in English. She is specially qualified for these departments, and is spending the summer in study at Chicago University.

MRS. VOCUM.

Professor Dinsmore is a man in the prime of life, a natural teacher, and one who is widely known as one of the coming men in educational lines. He has just attended the National Teachers' Association, at Charleston, S. C.

The National Teacher says of this appointment:

Supt. J. W. Dinsmore, after having been re-elected at Beatrice, with increase of salary, decided to accept a call to Berea College, Ky., where he will have charge of the Normal Department. Berea College is a growing institution, with substantial endowment, and a great work to perform for a sturdy race of young men and young women in the mountain districts of the Central South. It already has an enrollment of about 700 and has taken several of the best school men from the West, including former President Fairchild, of the State Agricultural College, of Kansas, and former Principal Marsh, of Pawnee City, Neb.

PRINCIPAL MARSH.

There is one good test for the success of a Kentucky teacher—How many pupils does he have in daily attendance?

THE FARM.

Keeping Animals Too Long.

It is a very commendable and humanitarian sentiment to keep cattle too long, for it indicates an attachment for them that one is loath to break, and yet a farmer who is raising animals for his living cannot let sentiment interfere with what he knows to be a good business. Others keep cattle too long simply because they happen to be ignorant of the best time to dispose of them, and keep waiting for a better turn in the markets to help them get good returns. Sometimes this living in the hope of doing better later induces a farmer to carry his herd over from month to month, and before he knows it a year has slipped by. The animals are meantime eating up all the profits they ever would have made for their owners, and are passing the prime of life, when they sell at best prices.

PROF. MASON.
AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY

We cannot afford to keep cattle one day longer than the time they reach full maturity or prime of life. Up to this period they have been gaining in weight and flesh, and every pound of feed that has been given to them has made its corresponding amount of flesh. Liberal feeding of growing animals makes glad the heart of the farmer or breeder, but when the food ceases to exert its magic influence then something seems to be wrong. The wrong is very often that the cattle have passed their prime, and all future feeding will bring no gain.

Prime cattle sold in the market means something more than fat and well developed carcasses. It includes a certain tenderness and juiciness of meat which can be gained only through rapid growing and laying on of flesh. This result has been obtained by good feeding of good animals. If these animals had ceased to grow the meat would begin to lose much of its best virtues. It may not be an easy matter always to tell just when an animal has ceased to grow, or when it has reached its full prime, but it is more profitable to sell just before that period, and thus lose the few extra pounds she may have gained than to hold her a few weeks beyond full maturity when she gains nothing in weight and loses in quality. Most of us are inclined to hold our cattle too long, and it may well be of value to some of us to look into the matter. Are we hampering ourselves by holding cattle over for higher markets when they should be sold at once, or are we selling them just as soon as they have reached their prime and are in the very best condition for the market?—E. P. Smith, in Massachusetts Ploughman.

Berea places the best education in reach of all. It is not a money-making institution. Its instruction is a free gift. It aims to help those who value education and to help themselves, and charges a small incidental fee to meet expenses of the school apart from instruction. Students must also pay for their board. Expenses for term (12 weeks) may be brought within $24, about half of which must be paid in advance.

The school is endorsed by Baptists, Congregationalists, Disciples, Methodists, Presbyterians, and good people of all denominations. For information or friendly advice address the Vice-President,

GEO. T. FAIRCHILD, LL. D., Berea, Madison Co., Ky.

PRESIDENT FROST.

President Frost is the son and the grandson of abolitionists. The colored people of today know too little of the great struggle that their white friends went through to secure freedom for the slave. President Frost's grandfather, Wm. Goodell, was mobbed and hunted by the slavery people because he was a friend of the Negro. President Frost graduated at Oberlin, where he knew Langston and Scarborough, and where he often met Frederick Douglass. While he taught at Oberlin, Garrison, Love, Miss Gibbs, Alexander, Mrs. Mollie Church Turner, and other distinguished colored leaders were among his pupils.

For the Colored People.

Berea's welcome to the colored people is worth more every year. People used to say that Negroes could not learn, but Berea showed them that they could. And people used to say that learning would make Negroes lazy—but the colored people who have been at Berea make their white neighbors move lively to keep up with them in industry.

Above all people—even good people—used to think that awful things would happen if colored and white young people should attend the same school. But an experiment of over thirty years since colored students were first admitted shows that no evil consequences have appeared, and that the two races are on better terms in the region of Berea's influence than anywhere else in the South.

When we look at the colored men Berea has raised up—men like Bond at Nashville, Tenn., pastor of one of the best colored churches in the world; Woodford in Virginia in a great industrial school; Russell, at Lexington; Williams, at Louisville; and many others—we wonder why every colored family does not strain every nerve and get at least one son or daughter to Berea.

The State Colored Teachers' Association meets at Berea next year, beginning July.

A Problem in Arithmetic.

Cost of a term of School at Berea.

Berea is not a money-making institution. It gives the services of all its teachers. It charges only an incidental fee to help pay for sweeping and warming the school rooms, etc.

The Hospital fee insures care in any sickness, so that you are safer in Berea than at home!

And then you must live at Berea (you have to eat even if you stay at home!). You may board yourself under proper regulations, board in approved families in Berea, or board at cost in College buildings. The items are given below, and should be studied carefully. Notice especially:

1. Room, fuel, incidental fee, and one month's board must be paid in advance.
2. Fuel will be 50 cents more in the winter, 50 cents less in the spring.
3. Students below Grammar schools pay only $3.50 for incidental fee.
4. Students in A Grammar and below have free textbooks.
5. Students bring their own bedding and towels.
6. If you get any work to do for the College you are paid at the end of each month in credits on school expenses.
7. They can't lend you money, but the Treasurer and every teacher will be your friend.

To pay the first day:	HOWARD HALL	LADIES' HALL
School (Incidental Fee)	$4.50	$1.50
Ex-penses
Hospital Fee	25	25
Books, etc., about	2.00	2.00
Key Deposit	1.00	1.00
Room (stove, table, etc.)	2.00	2.50
Fuel and Oil	2.50	3.00
Rent of Laundry		.50
First Month's Board	5.00	5.00
Living Ex-penses	17.25	18.75
To pay during the term:
Laundry	1.50
Beginning 2d Mo. Board	5.00	5.00
Beginning 3d Mo. Board	5.00	5.00
	28.75	28.75
Key Deposit returned	1.00	1.00
Total Expense, 12 Weeks	27.75	27.75

For those below A Grammar deduct the $2 for books, and $1 from incidental fee, making the total only $24.75. When four girls room together each saves $1 on room, and $2 or more on fuel, making the total only $21.75. The price of a big calf, a little tan bark, or a few home-spun bed-covers, will give a term of school which will change one's whole life for the better!

Two Kinds of Negroes.

A man is a man! Every human being is made so that he can go up or down—improve or degenerate!

Since the war we hear more of the crimes of the Negro. In slavery the wrong-doings of the Negro were dealt with on the plantation, and the Negro had some training from his master. Since the war some Negroes have been growing worse.

But on the other hand, other Negroes have used their freedom well. The family, the church, and the school are bringing up a better race than slavery ever did.

THE HOME.

Starting a New Home.

People have instruction and advice about all other subjects, but generally, or at least too often, scorn council and even neglect to use their own best judgment, in this greatest venture of life—starting a home.

We will not speak now about the matter of choosing a life companion, but take that for granted. Here is an honest, temperate, industrious, true-hearted man who has exchanged hearts with a healthy, sensible, capable girl. We shall all be glad to attend their wedding!

Now what is necessary for the new home in which these two are to live in happiness, and receive their friends, and into which their children will be born? We do not think of luxuries, but the simple comforts, which, thank God, any enterprising couple in this country may have. What do you furnish for the home, John?

"Well sir, I furnish a new log-house with a stone chimney, and a piece of land, and I built the house myself. There is a cool spring house near, and a smoke house, and a stable. I have a horse that can plow out my corn, and carry double when meeting time comes. I have an ax, and a mattock, and a plow, and other tools. And I have fifty dollars laid up to use if I should be sick, or when more is added to it, to buy more land with."

"What books and brains do you furnish, John?"

"Not so much as I would like, but enough so that I can help my children to get more. I have been to the free school so that I can write a letter, and keep an account book. And I had two terms at Berea, and have learned how to use a dictionary, and how to use tools a bit. I know enough so that I don't think I know everything, and enough so that I can learn more. For books I have some school books that are like old friends, my Bible, a farmer's manual, three or four story books, and the Royal Path of Life. Mary has some others, and we are going to take the CITIZEN and the UNION GOSPEL NEWS, so I allow we'll go forward and not back wards in the way of education."

"Well done, John, you are ready for a home, and deserve a good one. Next week we will inquire what Mary is furnishing for the new establishment."

Friendly Faces.

Two students passed each other in the Ladies' Hall one evening last fall, and the one who had been in Berea several years noticed that the other girl was wiping a tear out of her eye. "I know what it is, dear," she said. "Your are home-sick. I used to be, too. But now I just feel that Berea is a second and a bigger home."

We wish that we could show you in this one paper all the faces of your Berea friends, but we cannot. We will however, give you just two or three.

THE SCHOOL.

A New Educator For This Region.

It has not yet become generally known that Berea College has secured a new man of highest reputation, training, and experience, to take charge of the Normal Department, Supt. J. W. Dinsmore, of Beatrice, Nebraska.

Mrs. Eliza H. Vocum, who has been at the head of this department, and who is known and loved and admired by so wide a circle, has long felt that she could do more good in the classroom, and she is transferred to other work as Professor of German, and assistant in English. She is specially qualified for these departments, and is spending the summer in study at Chicago University.

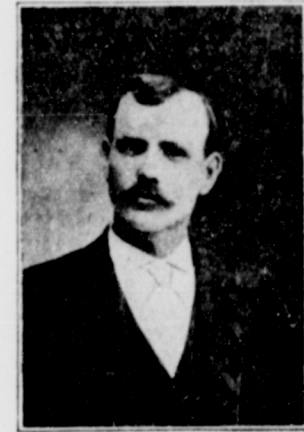

MRS. VOCUM.

Professor Dinsmore is a man in the prime of life, a natural teacher, and one who is widely known as one of the coming men in educational lines. He has just attended the National Teachers' Association, at Charleston, S. C.

The National Teacher says of this appointment:

Supt. J. W. Dinsmore, after having been re-elected at Beatrice, with increase of salary, decided to accept a call to Berea College, Ky., where he will have charge of the Normal Department. Berea College is a growing institution, with substantial endowment, and a great work to perform for a sturdy race of young men and young women in the mountain districts of the Central South. It already has an enrollment of about 700 and has taken several of the best school men from the West, including former President Fairchild, of the State Agricultural College, of Kansas, and former Principal Marsh, of Pawnee City, Neb.

THE FARM.

Keeping Animals Too Long.

It is a very commendable and humanitarian sentiment to keep cattle too long, for it indicates an attachment for them that one is loath to break, and yet a farmer who is raising animals for his living cannot let sentiment interfere with what he knows to be a good business. Others keep cattle too long simply because they happen to be ignorant of the best time to dispose of them, and keep waiting for a better turn in the markets to help them get good returns. Sometimes this living in the hope of doing better later induces a farmer to carry his herd over from month to month, and before he knows it a year has slipped by. The animals are meantime eating up all the profits they ever would have made for their owners, and are passing the prime of life, when they sell at best prices.

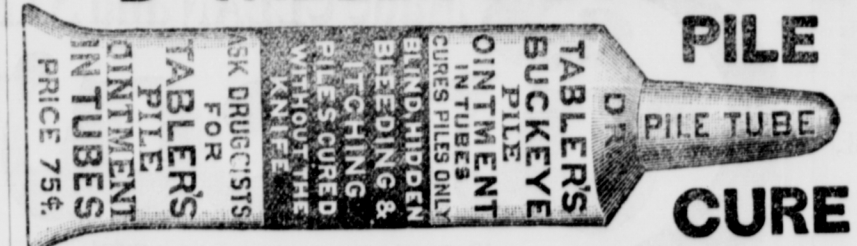

PROF. MASON.
AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY.

We cannot afford to keep cattle one day longer than the time they reach full maturity or prime of life. Up to this period they have been gaining in weight and flesh, and every pound of feed that has been given to them has made its corresponding amount of flesh. Liberal feeding of growing animals makes glad the heart of the farmer or breeder, but when the food ceases to exert its magic influence then something seems to be wrong. The wrong is very often that the cattle have passed their prime, and all future feeding will bring no gain.

Prime cattle sold in the market means something more than fat and well developed carcasses. It includes a certain tenderness and juiciness of meat which can be gained only through rapid growing and laying on of flesh. This result has been obtained by good feeding of good animals. If these animals had ceased to grow the meat would begin to lose much of its best virtues. It may not be an easy matter always to tell just when an animal has ceased to grow, or when it has reached its full prime, but it is more profitable to sell just before that period, and thus lose the few extra pounds she may have gained than to hold her a few weeks beyond full maturity when she gains nothing in weight and loses in quality. Most of us are inclined to hold our cattle too long, and it may well be of value to some of us to look into the matter. Are we hampering ourselves by holding cattle over for higher markets when they should be sold at once, or are we selling them just as soon as they have reached their prime and are in the very best condition for the market?—E. P. Smith, in Massachusetts Ploughsman.

Berea places the best education in reach of all. It is not a money-making institution. Its instruction is a free gift. It aims to help those who value education at a low price help themselves, and charges a small incidental fee to meet expenses of the school apart from instruction. Students must also pay for their board. Expenses for term (12 weeks) may be brought within $24, about half of which must be paid in advance.

The school is endorsed by Baptists, Congregationalists, Disciples, Methodists, Presbyterians, and good people of all denominations. For information or friendly advice address the Vice-President, GEO. T. FAIRCHILD, LL. D., Berea, Madison Co., Ky.
